ESSAY TIPS

First, to prepare for writing a paper, you need to choose a compelling topic. In this case, the topic is yourself; here are the key qualities of a good essay to keep in mind:

- It should be thoughtful and relevant
- It should be personal and reveal your individuality
- It should give you the scope to highlight your best qualities.
- It should be engaging.
- It should provide an insight into your experience or aspect of your background
- It will help you tell the admissions committee something they don't already know (i.e., something that wouldn't be seen in your application)
- It should not be to brag.

Be yourself when writing. You don't need to focus on major achievements; the committee wants to know you as a person. Even a basic story can be compelling if it's authentically yours.
